Tyco Fire & Security Demonstrates New SAPPHIRE™ Fire Suppression System in Vietnam

Vietnam, June 23, 2004 --- Tyco Fire & Security Services Pte Ltd, a major segment of Tyco International Ltd is organizing a series of special fire suppression workshops for clients in the major cities of Vietnam. The workshop commences in Hanoi on June 21 and will proceed through to Ho Chi Minh City and end in Vung Tau on June 25, 2004.

The highlight of the workshop will be a demonstration of Tyco's latest Fire Suppression System, SAPPHIRE™. The SAPPHIRE Suppression System uses 3M (R) NOVEC™ 1230 Fire Protection Fluid that looks exactly like water without damaging the assets it protects. In fact, items may even be submerged in the agent. This system is the ideal solution to help protect hospitals, museums, libraries, telecommunications centres as well as other commercial or industrial facilities seeking to protect critical assets that would be damaged by ordinary fire suppression systems.

This revolutionary technology utilizes a new sustainable* chemical agent that chemically interferes with the fire combustion process, halting it quickly. Unlike ordinary sprinkler systems which are designed to work when it detects an actual flame, SAPPHIRE Suppression Systems detect fire at invisible levels, identifying particles of combustion before they turn into damaging flames.

Seng Hian Lie, Regional Manager for Tyco Fire Suppressions in South East Asia says, "This is the first time that we are organizing these client workshops in Vietnam and we believe that this will bring the clients closer to Tyco. It also gives us the opportunity to show them the range of products and solutions we can offer as well as provide them with a real-time demonstration of our latest Fire Suppression product."
