

SEAPORT SECURITY FORUM

In the wake of terror attacks around the world, seaports and vessels are now more vulnerable than ever. In response to the concerns raised by the port and marine industry, the U.S. Commercial Service and Tyco Fire & Security Asia are working together to run a series of seminars for port and vessel owners.

Apart from addressing the latest regulation changes in the International Maritime Organization (IMO) such as the International Ship & Port Security (ISPS) Code, this forum aims to reach out to port operators, shipping companies, shipbuilding and ship repair operators and other related institutions to discuss recent developments in seaport security. As one of the leaders in the fire and security industry, Tyco Fire & Security Asia shares its unparalleled experience in planning and executing integrated solutions with a key focus on present and future maritime and security concerns.
